Module M.WIWI-VWL.0161: Empirical Development Economics
Learning outcome, core skills: Upon completion of the module, the students have acquired the following competencies: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • students learn how to compare and critically assess the econometric strategy used in empirical papers, • they also learn recent results from a range of topics in development economics, in particular becoming experts in their own topic, • importantly, this course improves the students' ability to write academic texts, develop coherent arguments and present their work in front of an audience. 		Workload: Attendance time: 28 h Self-study time: 152 h
Course: Empirical Development Economics (Seminar) Contents: Students can choose from a broad list of possible topics in development economics. For each topic, there is a list of related (empirical) papers. One central aspect of the seminar is to comparatively assess the empirical strategy used in 2-3 of those papers and to put their results into perspective, also given the rest of the literature.		2 WLH
Examination: Term paper (max. 15 pages) with presentation (ca. 20 minutes)		4,5 C
Examination: Supplementary presentation (ca. 10 minutes)		1,5 C
Examination requirements: In the research paper as well as in the presentation students demonstrate their ability to do independent research of the literature, understand and evaluate the econometric strategy of selected papers, develop coherent arguments, write a scientific paper, present key results, participate in a discussion, and provide constructive feedback on their peers' work.
